This game is a football game for PC and PlayStation 2, published in 2005. It is developed by EA Sports, the same developer of Madden NFL 2005. Gameplay The gameplay of this game is very similar to Madden NFL 2005, except there is also a small feature in the gameplay, which is called the "FootballLife" system. The FootballLife system tracks the player's performance and records them in the player's manager page. The "FootballLife" system records and tracks all the stats and records them, such as K/D ratio, Passes Completed, Passes Attempted, Passes Defended, Passes Yards Gained, and so on. Game Modes There are a total of 9 game modes in the game. Some of these are: Playoff Mode - This mode is where the National Football League season will be played. There are different divisions in this mode. You must finish in top 3 to win the Championship. Exhibition Mode - This is the mode where you will only have a limited number of players. You will play in a home vs. away game. Quick Play - This is a mode where you will play with another player from the same platform. Training - This is where you will play against AI characters in order to improve your player. Team Management There are 2 ways to manage a team. First is the "Organizational Chart". The Organizational Chart is where you will assign and reassign players on your team. The second way is the "Player List". The Player List is where you will assign and reassign players to different roles. Organizational Chart In the Organizational Chart, you will have up to 4 slots for players. When you assign a player, you will select from the player and his position to fill in the slots. There are 9 positions on a football team. First position is the Quarterback, and last position is the Defensive end. You can also assign an assistant coach. There are total of 9 positions, which includes one assistant coach. Assign players to the slots in the Organizational Chart. Player List In the Player List, you will have a total of 26 slots for your players. Each player will be assigned a position and a position number. Online There are total of 32 players in the current Madden NFL 06's online mode. The online mode will feature a short pregame countdown before the game starts, 82157476af
